

Contents

About the Author	viii
Prologue: A Method Guide for the Perplexed	ix
Acknowledgment	xi
Further Acknowledgments	xii
1. What, Why, and How?	1
What do you want to study?	1
Why do you want to study that?	2
How to study what you want to study	4
Exercise 1: What do I want to know and why?	9
Further reading	9
2. Reviewing Literature	11
Doing the search	11
Close reading	12
Structuring the review	16
Referencing	17
Exercise 2: Explication, explanation, exploration	20
Further reading	20
3. Designing the Study	21
Cases, windows, sites	21
Grounded theory approach	23
Exercise 3: Designing the study	27
Further reading	27
4. Interviewing	28
What is an interview?	28
The interview as a site of narrative re-production	31
Interviews as observation opportunities	36
What questions do the interviews answer?	38
Transcription and its problems	40
Exercise 4: An interview	41
Further reading	41
5. Observation on the Move: Shadowing	43
Varieties of observation	43
A brief history of shadowing	44

The uses of shadowing	46
The shadowy side of shadowing	54
Exercise 5: Shadowing	56
Further reading	56
6. Following Objects and Quasi-objects	57
Rediscovering things: Actor–Network Theory	57
The travels of the soil from the Amazon forest	58
Following the air and the water in Stockholm	60
Shadowing software	62
Why follow the objects?	64
Exercise 6: Following the objects	65
Further reading	65
7. Tools for Fieldwork	66
Diary studies in the digital era	66
The eye of the camera	70
Exercise 7: Research tools	71
Further reading	71
8. Surviving in the Field: Practicalities and Personalities	72
Access	72
Positioning in the field	78
Fieldwork is intersected	83
Exercise 8: Surviving in the field	85
Further reading	85
9. Excursions into Cyberspace	87
Fieldwork via cyberspace	87
Fieldwork about cyberspace	91
Fieldwork in cyberspace	92
Exercise 9: Cyberstudies	95
Further reading	96
10. Analyzing Field Material	97
Grounded theory revisited	97
Content analysis	99
Discourse analysis	99
Conversation analysis	101
Visual analyses	103

Exercise 10: Analyzing field material	106
Further reading	107
11. Text Analyses	108
Rhetorical analysis	108
Structuralism: The origins	110
Structuralism in psychology	111
Inspiration from semiology: Actor–Network Theory	113
Poststructuralism	115
Exercise 11: Text analyses	117
Further reading	118
12. Writing it Up	119
How fieldwork is written	119
A structure of a thesis	120
Description, or how to re-present the world	122
Emplotment, or how to theorize	125
First story: A case	128
Second story: A praxiography	129
Third story: An ethnography	130
Exercise 12: The craft of writing	133
Further reading	133
13. Good Academic Writing: Beauty and Credibility	134
Blurring genres	134
Traditional criteria of goodness	135
Arguments that have worked	138
Style	139
Social sciences as a blurred genre	140
Exercise 13: The art of writing	142
Further reading	142
14. When to Stop, and What to do Next	143
On foxes and hedgehogs	143
When to stop?	144
Where to go next?	146
Exercise 14: When to stop	152
Further reading	152
References	153
Index	172