

Contents

INTRODUCTION	11
Chapter I
HUMAN RESOURCE MANAGEMENT: INNOVATION LEVERAGE..	15
1. The Imperative for Growth in Innovativeness.....	15
1.1. Innovativeness: The Importance of the Problem.....	15
1.2. The Changing Structure of Innovation	17
1.3. Human Resource Management: The Driving Force of Innovation Development.....	20
2. The Quest for a High Performance Work System.....	23
2.1. The Roots of High Performance Work Systems: Theory and Practice	25
2.2. Two Concepts of High Performance Work Systems.....	27
2.3. Highly Effective Human Resource Management Systems: Basic Practices	32
2.4. HIWP and HPWS* and Innovativeness in the Organization	37
Summary	42
Chapter II
DOES THIS WORK IN PRACTICE?	44
Research Results.....	44
1. Goals and Research Hypotheses: A Word about Methodology	44
2. Human Resource Management Level: Company Innovativeness and Economic Results	48
3. Human Resource Management Models as Compared with Company Innovation and Market Value.....	50
3.1. Reaction of the Innovation Growth Index to Changes in the Human Resource Management Model as well as Its Alignment with Organization Strategy and Homogeneity of Practices	51
3.2. Reaction of the Innovation Level Index to Changes to the Human Resource Management Model.....	53
3.3. Reaction of Company Market Value to Changes in the Human Resource Management Models.....	53
3.4. Importance (Flexibility) Coefficients of Variables Defining Innovation Level and Dynamics	54

3.5. What Is Detrimental to Strong Links between Human Resource Management and Innovativeness?	55
4. Human Resource Management and Organization Innovativeness and Efficiency: The View of Research and Development Heads and Trade Union Organization Representatives.....	60
5. Human Resource Management Level and Model, and Employee Involvement, Satisfaction, and Openness to Innovation	63
5.1. Human Resource Management Level and Employee Openness to Innovation as well as Their Involvement and Satisfaction	63
5.2. The Human Resource Management Model and Employee Satisfaction, Openness to Innovation, and Involvement.....	64
5.2.1. Human Resource Management Model and Openness to Innovation..	65
5.2.2. The Human Resource Management Model and Employee Satisfaction.....	67
5.2.3. Employee Involvement and the Human Resource Management Model	67
5.2.4. Importance Coefficient.....	68
5.2.5. Control Variables	68
5.3. The Human Resource Management Model and Employee Attitudes: Synthesis.....	69
6. Employee Attitudes with Respect to Innovation	70
6.1. Employee Involvement and Openness: Leverage for Growth.....	70
6.2. Barriers to Innovation Growth as Seen by Respondents	76
6.3. Innovation Growth Factors.....	80
Summary	86

Chapter III

THE EMPLOYEE RECRUITMENT SYSTEM AS A TOOL FOR BUILDING INNOVATION.....	88
1. Formulating Strategies for the Recruitment of Innovative Employees	88
2. Defining Innovator Profile in the Employment Planning Stage in Line with Company Strategic Needs	89
3. Selection of Recruitment Sources and Methods that Are Appropriate for Innovative Employees	90
4. Choice of Selection Tools and Procedures Allowing the Accurate Identification of Candidates with the Highest Innovation Potential	91
5. The Attracting of Employees in the Examined Organizations	92
5.1. Recruitment and Selection in Listed Companies.....	92
5.2. Recruitment and Selection in the View of Innovative Organization Employees.....	94
Summary	97

Chapter IV

THE ROLE OF TRAINING AND DEVELOPMENT IN BUILDING EMPLOYEE AND COMPANY INNOVATIVENESS 99

1. Introduction	99
2. Does the Training and Development System Play a Role in Building Innovativeness?	100
3. The Training and Development System as a Key Organizational Competency in Building Innovativeness.....	103
Conclusions and Recommendations.....	108

Chapter V

MOTIVATING FOR INNOVATIVENESS..... 110

1. Pro-Innovation Motivation in the View of Scientists, Advisors, and Managers from Innovative Companies.....	110
2. Motivation and Innovation: Econometric Research Results	112
2.1. The Relationship between Remuneration and Innovativeness in Listed Companies.....	113
2.2. The Connection between Motivation and Employee Attitudes.....	114
3. Pro-Innovation Motivational Instruments in Practice.....	115
3.1. Remuneration Level	115
3.2. Performance-Based Remuneration	115
3.3. Remuneration for Innovators.....	117
3.4. Recognition	119
Summary	121

Chapter VI

THE ROLE OF COMMUNICATIONS AND INFORMATION IN PROMOTING INNOVATIVENESS 123

1. Communication Processes in Companies with Diverse Organizational Structures	123
2. Communications and Information in Pro-Innovation Organizational Cultures.....	125
3. Communications and Innovation.....	127
3.1. The Information Function of Communications	128
3.2. The Motivation Function of Communications	128
4. Information and Communication Systems in Light of Research.....	129
4.1. Communications and Information as Strategic Goals of the Examined Companies	129
4.2. The Impact of Organizational Structure on the Quality of Communication and Information Flow.....	132
4.3. Communication and Information Systems and Organizational Culture	133
Summary	135

Chapter VII

PARTICIPATIVE HUMAN RESOURCE MANAGEMENT

AND COMPANY INNOVATIVENESS.....	136
1. Specifics of Work Processes in Contemporary Companies	136
2. Growth in Interest in Questions of Participation	136
2.1. The Importance of Participation in Company Management	138
2.2. Risk Related to the Introduction of Participation	139
2.3. Participation and the Role of Trade Unions	139
2.4. The Modern Understanding of Democracy in the Company	141
3. Benefits Stemming from Participation	141
4. Participation and the HPWS Concept.....	143
5. The Impact of Participation on Involvement and Company Innovativeness:
The Results of Empirical Studies	144
5.1. Participation and Innovativeness.....	144
5.2. Participation and Employee Attitudes with Respect to Innovation.....	146
Summary	148

Chapter VIII

CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

1. Selection of the Human Resource Management Model	152
2. Shaping Employee Behavior	153
2.1. Recruitment and Selection.....	154
2.2. Investment in Employee Development	156
2.3. Motivating Employees	158
2.4. Information and Communications.....	160
2.5. Employee Participation	161
3. About the Need for Further Research and Scientific Penetration.....	162

Annex I

HUMAN RESOURCE MANAGEMENT INDEXES

Annex I.A.

The Substantive Content of Human Resource Management Indexes	165
--	-----

Annex I.B.

Manner of Calculating Human Resource Management Indexes	168
---	-----

Annex II

ECONOMETRIC STUDIES.....

1. Methodology of Research into the Company	171
1.1. Measurement of Independent Variables.....	171
1.1.1. Assessment of Bundle Homogeneity	172
1.1.2. Measures of Internal and External Alignment	173

1.2. Dependent Variables	173
1.2.1. Company Competitiveness.....	173
1.2.2. Company Innovativeness	174
1.3. Control Variables	174
1.4. Flexibility (Importance Coefficient).....	175
2. Employee Opinion Polls.....	175

Annex III

THE INNOVATIVENESS INDEX:

CALCULATION METHODOLOGY	178
--------------------------------------	------------

1. The Company Innovativeness Index Calculated in Line with the Modified Methodology of the Institute for Economic Sciences of the Polish Academy of Sciences	178
1.1. Market Innovativeness	179
1.2. Process Innovativeness.....	180
1.3. Assessment of Expenditures on Innovative Activity.....	181
1.4. Patents	183
2. Assessment of Assumed Solutions	183

REFERENCES	185
-------------------------	------------

INFORMATION ABOUT AUTHORS	195
--	------------